Internships

There is no “one size fits all” timeline for internships at NBS.

Summer Internship – As part of the degree programme, penultimate year students will undergo a 10-week professional attachment during May-July. For double-degree students, this will take place in their second year.

Winter Internship – Students going for overseas exchange in Semester Two of their second academic year must complete their professional attachment during December/January. This is provided that their term abroad starts late, allowing them sufficient time to complete a winter internship before departure. The required duration is shortened to eight weeks.

Part-time Internship – Students may elect to intern a couple of days per week during the academic year. This requires them to carefully plan their course schedules such that they can fulfill this internship commitment. Part-time internship can help students defray their college expenses, maximize their time and soak up as much working experience as possible.

Long-term internship – Another option which has gained popularity amongst NBS students is the long-term internship of six months – January to June and July to December. It’s all about accumulating solid work experience. One of the tangible benefits of a long-term internship is the ability to participate in projects and see them through from start to end. A Leave of Absence (LOA) must be approved by the university in order for students to undertake this internship.
